A Castle in the Backyard May 29 2022 In one of the most beautiful river valleys in Europe, in the region known as Périgord in southwest France, castles crown the hills, and the surrounding villages seem carved all of a piece out of the local stone. In 1985, in the shadow of one of these medieval castles, Betsy Draine and Michael Hinden fell in love with a small stone house that became their summer home. Like any romance, this one has had its ups and downs, and Betsy and Michael chart course in this delightful memoir. They offer an intimate glimpse of a region little known to Americans—the Dordogne valley, its castles and prehistoric art, its walking trails and earthy cuisine—and describe the charms and mishaps of setting up housekeeping thousands of miles from home. Along with the region's terrain and culture, A Castle in the Backyard introduces us to the people of Périgord—the castle's proprietor, the village children, the gossipy real-estate agent, the rascally mason, and the ninety-year-old widow with a tale of heartbreak. A celebration of place and its people, the book also reflects on the future of historic Périgord as tourism and development pose a challenge to its graceful way of life.

The Matchmaker Of Perigord Dec 04 2022 A perpetual breeze blows through Amour-sur-Belle, a village so ugly that even the English refuse to live there. Guillaume Ladoucette the barber is forced to give up his business as the advance age of his customers means many have gone bald. He decides to set himself up as matchmaker instead, for, despite its name, love is the one thing that Amour-sur-Belle lacks. Some shun Denise Vigier because her grandmother was found guilty of horizontal collaboration during the war. The bar owner refuses to serve Madame Fournier, the mushroom poisoner. And Madame Ladoucette and Madame Moreau have been trading insults for so long they have become almost a form of greeting. 'Not everyone falls instantly head over heels,' the matchmaker counsels. 'Love is a good cassoulet, it needs time and determination.' But how can a matchmaker make love simmer - when he has not yet solved the problem of his own troubled heart?

To Kill a Troubadour Jan 01 2020 Join Bruno, France's favourite country cop, on his latest adventure as he fights to keep St Denis safe. Set in the beautiful Périgord region, The Dordogne Mysteries are the perfect combination of mystery and escapism. It is summer in St Denis and Bruno is busy organising the annual village concert. He's hired a local Périgord folk group, Les Troubadours, to perform their latest hit 'A Song for Catalonia'. But when the song unexpectedly goes viral, the Spanish government, clamping down on the Catalonian bid for independence, bans Les Troubadours from performing it. The timing couldn't be worse, and Bruno finds himself under yet more pressure when a specialist sniper's bullet is found wrecked car near Bergerac. The car was reportedly stolen on the Spanish frontier and the Spanish government sends warning that a group of nationalist extremists may be planning an assassination in France. Bruno immediately suspects that Les Troubadours and their audience might be in danger. Bruno must organise security and ensure that his beloved town and its people are safe - the stakes are high for France's favourite policeman.

The Caves of Perigord Jul 31 2022 In a brilliant and ambitious thriller that combines elements of Jean Auel's The Clan of the Cave Bear and Ken Follett's The Pillars of the Earth into a riveting, multifaceted tale of love, art, courage, and war, Martin Walker brings to life the creation of an extraordinary work of prehistoric cave art and the struggle to possess it in our own time. Walker's richly interwoven novel opens with the arrival of a mysterious package for a young American woman working in a London auction house. Brought by a British officer, it contains a 17,000-year-old fragment of a cave painting left to him by his father, a former World War II hero. The fragment, significant and stunning in itself, is also the key to the existence of an un-known cave that may be more important in the history of art and human creation than the world-famous one at Lascaux. It triggers a storm of publicity and commands the attention of the French authorities all the way up to the President of the Republic, who seems to know more about the painting's origins than anyone else... As the young American woman, the British officer, and a French government art historian explore the ancient province of Périgord to determine the painting's origins, their search serves as backdrop for three compelling stories. There is the tale of the British officer's father who lands in Nazi-occupied France in 1944 to organize the Resistance, culminating in a series of battles to prevent the Das Reich Panzer Division from reaching the Normandy beaches in time to repel the D-Day invasion, which leads to an account of the subsequent discovery -- and cleanup -- of the lost cave and its paintings. And there is also the moving story of the young artist who painted them, the woman he loved, and the ancient culture that produced the first recognizable human art but required the sacrifice of its own creators. Filled with vivid, historically accurate details and imaginative re-creation of prehistoric life, The Caves of Périgord blends a complex plot and richly diverse characters into a seamless narrative of romance, tragedy, and heroism from past to present.

Life and Food in the Dordogne Sep 01 2022 Through the centuries, the Dordogne has cherished a tradition of fine cuisine that is framed throughout France, and this region has produced a disproportionate number of France's finest chefs: Brillat-Savarin, Carême, Escoffier, André Noel and, in our own times, Marcel Boulestin. Moreover, the culinary skills found on the farms and in town households are not removed from the gastronomic secrets of the finest restaurants. Historical and personal anecdotes abound in this rare book, rich in recipes, and full of insight and observation. Food is discussed at great length, and the recipes special to this part of France symbolize to the people of Perigord the traditional skills and patterns of a permanent way of looking at the world and its gifts. James Bentley has a house in the Dordogne, and spends a good part of each year there. His many books include travel guides to the Dordogne, the Loire, and Tuscany, and the Blue Guide to Western Germany and Berlin.

Bruno chef de police Mar 15 2021 Bruno Courrèges mag dan wel commissaris van de politie zijn, eigenlijk heeft hij niet veel te doen in het kleine toeristische plaatsje St. Denis. Hij heeft een dienstwapen, maar dat draagt hij nooit. Hij heeft het recht mensen te arresteren, maar dat is in zijn loopbaan slechts één keer voorgekomen. Bruno houdt zich voornamelijk bezig met St. Denis te behoeden voor invloeden van buitenaf: de bemoeienissen van de Europese Commissie en de nationale politiek. Maar op bevrijdingsdag vindt er een vreselijke misdaad plaats. De grootvader van een Noord-Afrikaanse familie wordt dood aangetroffen. Iedereen denkt dat het een racistische moord is. Maar Bruno is niet overtuigd en stelt een grondig onderzoek in, dat de verhoudingen binnen het dorp ernstig zal verstoren.

Castles in the Air Nov 10 2020 CASTLES IN THE AIR : Coming Home to the Périgord. The senses are heightened in the Périgord, what the French call la France profonde, deep France. The taste of food, the sweetness of the country air after the spectacular late-summer thunderstorms suddenly etching the sky with alarmingly jagged bolts of lightning. The drowsy rich summer days, followed by cool autumn nights and then the chill brilliance of a mid-winter frost. Perhaps because men and women have for so long worked the fields and every inch of land that can be tilled, the entire countryside has the effect of having been landscaped by some master hand. History is always present here, in the lichen-covered golden stone of every ancient house, in the narrow streets of ancient tiny villages, in the hauteur of a forbidding and crenellated chateau that towers imposingly next to a rushing river. Indeed history seems to infuse the very air of the Périgord, heir to the ages of eternal France. There is mystery here and some say that it was born of the magic that scholars claim the ancient cave paintings may have been trying to conjure. Whatever the cause, the Périgord is indeed the most magical and the most beautiful region in all of France and as you drive along a narrow country road, through a rich dark forest bordering either side, you suddenly see in the distance ghost-like towers rising above the trees, floating, it almost seems, on the horizon, the misty towers of a castle in the air. This is the story of how we came home to the Périgord

Michelin Green Guide Dordogne Berry Limousin Feb 11 2021 This completely revised Michelin Green Guide featuring Dordogne, Berry and Limousin presents some of the most-visited, and some of the least-visited, areas in France. The Dordogne, and increasingly the Quercy, characterized by castles and caves, are well known to visitors, while the Berry and Limousin areas with their unspoiled countryside and plateaux are much less familiar but definitely worth a visit. The guide with its star-rating system and maps covers it all from the prehistory of Perigord Noir to northern Berry's wine-growing region and the crisp white wines of Sancerre."
